Aeration

What is Aeration?

Aeration is the method of creating holes in a lawn to alleviate soil compaction and increase the flow of oxygen, water, and nutrients to roots. This allows roots to dig deep into the soil, growing strong and resilient.

Benefits of Lawn Aeration

Because tightly compacted soil can starve the roots of nutrients, aeration allows the turf to grow much more easily and efficiently. By seeding the lawn directly afterwards, we will cultivate a dense, healthy, green lawn.

Do you need to have your lawn aerated?

If your grass isn't growing as densely or as green as it used to, soil compaction and nutrient deficiency may be the problem.

Here are some signs your lawn would benefit from aeration:

- Your soil is hard to the touch.
- Your lawn dries out easily.
- Water forms puddles instead of being absorbed by the soil.
- Your grass is thinning, withering, or losing its green color.
- Your grass is developing brown patches.

Lawn Fertilization

Why Fertilize your Lawn?

The right fertilizer plan is essential for a healthy, flourishing lawn. At Green Rabbit, we understand that every lawn is unique, and therefore has unique needs. Our experienced technicians will conduct a free lawn assessment to determine what kind of nutrients will help your lawn flourish.

When Will You See Results?

You will be surprised how quickly you will begin to notice a difference. While the timing may vary based on your lawn's condition and the time of year, our blend of nutrients is guaranteed to have your lawn looking noticeably greener and more robust within just 10 days.

When is the Best Time to Fertilize?

Fertilizing is most effective when it is applied consistently throughout the year. Different types of nutrients are necessary during each season, and we will always use the most appropriate seasonal fertilizer. Additionally, fertilizing after aeration can provide unbelievable results. This allows the fertilizer to penetrate deep into the soil and provides unrivaled nutrient enrichment. Our tailored annual programs offer a combination of aeration fertilization, and seeding that will provide noticeable, rapid improvement.

Weed Control

Importance of Weed Control

Weed control has several important benefits. Not only are weeds unsightly for your home, but they can carry crop pathogens, host damaging insects, and rob your lawn of nutrients needed to reach its potential.

Why use a Professional Service?

Tackling weeds is hard work. At Green Rabbit, we've developed comprehensive procedures to identify and eliminate unwanted weeds from your property while simultaneously fostering thick turf to help prevent them from returning. Many types of weeds are nearly impossible to eliminate by yourself.

Additionally, our technicians are trained to follow strict safety procedures.

How do we treat weeds?

We employ a multi-step procedure to tackle weeds in your lawn and garden. The best way to keep your property weed-free is to create an environment where they will struggle to grow and survive. We do this by promoting thick turf growth which drowns any potential weeds of nutrients. For lawns that already have a weed infestation, we use effective spot-spraying methods which reduces the amount of added product needed.

Dethatching

What is Thatch?

Thatch is a layer of undigested roots, leaves, and organic plant material that settles between the actual grass and the surface of the soil. This creates a thick barrier which prevents roots from growing deeply in search of water. Dethatching your lawn will remove this dead layer.

Aerating vs Dethatching

Both dethatching and aerating help to allow water, fertilizer, and air to penetrate deeper into the soil.

Aerating works by removing plugs of soil while dethatching works by removing an entire layer of debris from between the turf and the surface of the soil with a power rake. Aeration is best when soil is over-compacted, while dethatching is best when the thatch layer is too thick. Each process treats slightly different issues, yet both provide exceptional results.

How often do I need to Dethatch?

Unlike aeration, which should be done about twice per year for optimal health, dethatching is only necessary when a thick layer of thatch is present. Our skilled technicians will determine which of these two services is necessary.

Irrigation

The most important aspect of Lawn Care

Watering is the most critical part of growing and maintaining a healthy lawn. It is crucial to water with the correct volume and frequency; too much or too little water will severely damage your lawn. Green Rabbit offers a full range of services to help keep your irrigation system running at its best. Whether you're dealing with a broken sprinkler, an underground pipe leak, a valve that won't shut off, or issues with your timer or controller, we've got you covered. Our trained technicians can set your sprinklers to the proper schedule and volume for optimal growing conditions.

Switch to a Smart Irrigation System

Are you looking to upgrade your irrigation system? We can help with that too. Our team is skilled in conversions from spray to drip systems and brand-new installations. And if you're interested in a smart controller that you can operate from your phone or computer, our experts are happy to help.
